MARKET COMMENTARY

The Aussie market started the week with a decent hit after the long weekend. We have US Non-Farm Payroll beat delaying rate cuts despite rising unemployment while France calling snap election after European elections going towards the far right. The problem with politics is that no one wants to do dirty work and reform the economy. The lack of reform means there is a massive policy void as the economy stagnates. The weak economic cycle will attract extreme candidates offering fantasy options and they build a substantial base based on going against the system despite more of these candidates getting where they are by using the system. Western economies are gradually falling into the Japanese ponzi economic policies after criticizing them for decades. There is no plan B after window dressing the economy for elections cycles. We are seeing that in UK, EU and India. The US is on the way to doing the same. Rate cut hope in elevated and rising inflation is asking for more pain. We have proven that bottom-up economics is a total failure while top-down vacuum economics will boost asset prices and let the poor take the blame. It may be different this time!

CNBC on French snap election > French President Emmanuel Macron's decision to call a snap election after the far-right National Rally party won more than double the votes of his centrist alliance has been greeted with surprise, dismay and more than a little bewilderment. It has also resurfaced long-standing criticism of Macron, particularly from political commentators and opponents, who see the president as arrogant, ego-driven and, perhaps more worryingly in their eyes, a leader willing to put France's stability on the line in what's being seen as a "huge political gamble." For his part, Macron said that holding a snap election would provide clarity after the European Parliament elections, in which the NR party won around 31% of the vote, more than double the 14.6% for the centrist, pro-European alliance that included Macron's Renaissance Party. In a national address Sunday evening as he announced his decision to dissolve parliament, Macron told the electorate that he had "heard" their concerns and would "not leave them unanswered ... France needs a clear majority to act in serenity and harmony," he added. The first round of voting will take place on June 30, with a second to be held on July 7. Analysts said Macron's decision was likely a tactical gamble, with the president hopeful that 1) the European parliamentary election drubbing was the result of a protest vote rather than deeper dissatisfaction with his leadership and 2) that the prospect of a far-right power grab will mobilize the centrist electorate to vote for his party to prevent NR from obtaining an absolute majority in the National Assembly, the lower house of parliament.

The current state of global markets is marked by a bear market cycle, with fluctuations that are causing both positive and negative outcomes for investors. Historically, 75% of retail investors have experienced losses during positive market periods. Investors are now facing market cycles that are unprecedented in their lifetime, making risk management a crucial aspect of investing. Going forward, the trend towards active investing is reemerging as investors seek quality, relative value, profitability, and dividends. To navigate this new paradigm, it's important to have an active investment strategy that is flexible and adaptable to changing market conditions!

US consumer inflation expectations for the year ahead declined to 3.2% in May 2024 from 3.3% in April. Median year-ahead expected price changes were unchanged for gas (at 4.8%), food (5.3%), rent (9.1%), and home price (3.3%). On the other hand, they increased for medical care (+0.4 percentage to 9.1%) but declined for college education (-0.6 percentage point to 8.4%). Meanwhile, inflation expectations were unchanged at the three-year horizon at 2.8% and increased at the five-year horizon to 3% from 2.8%. In addition, the median one-year-ahead expected earnings growth was unchanged at 2.7% while unemployment expectations went up to 38.6% from 37.2%.

Australia's NAB business confidence index fell to -3 in May 2024 from an upwardly revised 2 in April, pointing to the lowest level in six months and turning negative for the first time since last November. The latest result suggested that subdued economic activity in Q1 had continued into Q2, as sentiment worsened in manufacturing, transports, and construction. Business conditions were below average (6 vs 7 in April), weighed by drops in sales (10 vs 13) and profitability (3 vs 6). Forward orders stayed negative (-6 vs -7), rattled by retail, wholesale, and construction. Capacity utilization was almost unchanged (83.3% vs 83.2%), while capex sank (4 vs 8). Labor cost growth rose to 2.3% in quarterly equivalent terms from the prior 1.5%, and purchase cost growth increased to 1.9% from 1.3%. Retail price growth went up to 1.6% from 1.0%. "The message here is a mixed one for the RBA," said NAB chief economist Alan Oster said. "We expect the RBA to keep rates on hold for some time yet."

The United Kingdom's unemployment rate rose to 4.4% from February to April 2024, compared to market forecasts and the previous three-month period's 4.3%. It was the highest reading since the three months to September 2021, as the number of unemployed individuals grew by 24 thousand to a total of 1.51 million, driven by those unemployed for up to 6 months, which remained above levels from a year ago. Also, those unemployed for over 6 and up to 12 months and those over 12 months had increased in the latest period. Meanwhile, the number of employed individuals increased by 29.7 thousand to 33.0 million, mainly due to a rise in part-time employees and full-time self-employed workers. On the other hand, the number of full-time employees decreased during the quarter. Finally, the economic inactivity rate rose by 0.2 percentage points to 22.3%.

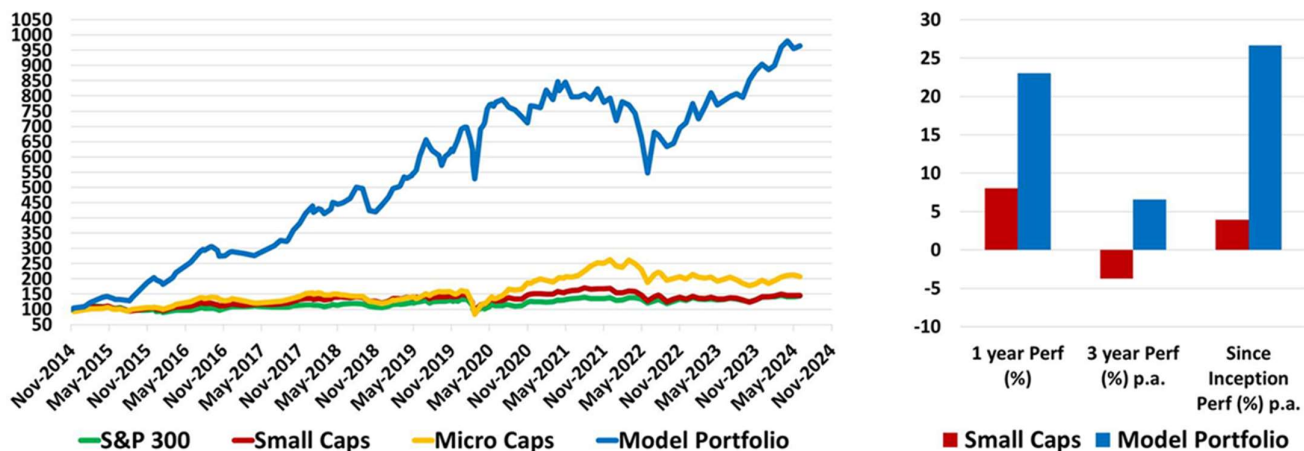

Average weekly earnings including bonuses in the UK increased 5.9% year-on-year to GBP 687/week in the three months to April 2024, the same as an upwardly revised 5.9% in the previous period and above forecasts of 5.7%. Wage growth increased in the public sector (6.3% vs 6.2%) but eased at the private sector (5.8% vs 6.1%). Meanwhile, regular pay which excludes bonus payment, went up 6%, the same as in the previous month, and remaining at 2022-low levels. The finance and business services sector (6.9%) saw the largest annual regular growth rates, followed by manufacturing (6.5%) and services (6.1%). Adjusted for inflation, wage growth in real terms increased to 2.2% from 1.9% for total pay including bonuses and to 2.3% from 2.1% for regular pay excluding bonuses.

Global Markets

The US market started the week with the usual start negative and moved positive on tech pump day ahead of the Fed meeting and inflation updates. The only data we got over the holiday Monday was more messy Japanese data where growth is negative, inflation is rising, and consumer spending keeps falling. ECB is getting a lot of pushbacks after starting their cut cycle. France going into snap election like UK raises political risk and suggests that data is going to get worse later. Apple is planning to get Siri to link with ChatGPT. NASDAQ +0.35%, S&P +0.26%, RUSSELL +0.25% and DOW +0.18%. VIX moves up to high 12. Yields and USD were higher. Commodities were positive too with Oil popping nearly 4%. Utilities and Energy were the best sectors while Financials and Staples were the worst. European markets were lower after French snap election.
