MARKET COMMENTARY

The Aussie market had started positively and faded to finish slightly positive. It was still all about the global macro with global mega passive funds selling out of Australia to defend US. The economic data in the US keeps sliding and dragging probability of Republicans keeping all three house majority below 20%. The government shutdown is only three weeks away and Democrats are going to play hardball. White House plan for Venezuela seems comical. They have left the same government and that government keeps saying that they are in control. White House is using leverage from blockades and claiming they are getting 30-50m barrels of high-quality oil, despite number of ships running through the blockade. Even if that was true, it's only $3b at best and nothing at worst. They are claiming a lot about Greenland while EU nations have pushed back. Trade war worries are rising. Commodity prices and tariffs are going to raise inflation in 2026 when consumers are already starting to crack. Only 10% of the Epstein files have been released. There have been more dictators and fraudsters pardoned than caught by Epstein case. Locally inflation came in lower after last month's pop but it's still dramatically higher than RBA band. It may be different this time!

CNBC – US and Venezuela > President Donald Trump said Tuesday evening that the interim authorities in Venezuela will be turning over between 30 million to 50 million barrels of oil to the United States on the heels of the U.S.'s dramatic ouster of the South American country's authoritarian leader, Nicolas Maduro. Trump, in a social media post, said the oil will be sold at its market price, "and that money will be controlled by me, as President of the United States of America, to ensure it is used to benefit the people of Venezuela and the United States!". "I have asked Energy Secretary Chris Wright to execute this plan, immediately," Trump wrote. "It will be taken by storage ships, and brought directly to unloading docks in the United States." Trump said that the oil being turned over the U.S. was "high quality" and "sanctioned." U.S. crude futures fell 1.3% to $56.39 per barrel on the heels of Trump's announcement.

CNBC – US and Greenland > President Donald Trump and his team are considering "a range of options" in order to acquire Greenland — including "utilizing the U.S. Military," White House press secretary Karoline Leavitt told CNBC on Tuesday. The statement further escalates the Trump administration's already aggressive rhetoric about Greenland, which the president has long sought to make a part of the United States. Trump said Sunday that the U.S. needs the Arctic island for national security purposes, pointing to Russian and Chinese activities in the region. Greenland is a territory of Denmark, which, like the U.S., is a member of the NATO international military alliance. The leaders of Denmark and other European NATO states on Tuesday morning issued a joint statement pushing back on Trump's increasingly vocal desire to obtain Greenland.

Historically, 75% of retail investors have experienced losses during positive market periods. Investors are now facing market cycles that are unprecedented in their lifetime, making risk management a crucial aspect of investing. Going forward, the trend towards active investing is reemerging as investors seek quality, relative value, profitability, and dividends. To navigate this new paradigm, it's important to have an active investment strategy that is flexible and adaptable to changing market conditions!

Germany's annual inflation rate fell to 1.8% in December 2025, down from 2.3% in November and below market expectations of 2.0%, according to preliminary data. The reading dropped below the European Central Bank's 2% target midpoint for the first time since September 2024, marking the second-lowest inflation rate since early 2021. Goods inflation slowed sharply, easing to 0.4% from 1.1% in November, reflecting softer food price growth (0.8% vs. 1.2%) and a deeper decline in energy prices (-1.3% vs. -0.1%). In contrast, services inflation remained stubbornly elevated and unchanged at 3.5%. Core inflation, which excludes volatile food and energy prices, fell to 2.4%, its lowest level since June 2021. Meanwhile, the EU-harmonized CPI eased to 2.0% in December, its lowest level since July and below forecasts of 2.2%. For the full year 2025, national inflation averaged 2.2%, while harmonized inflation averaged 2.3%.

The S&P Global Canada Services PMI rose to 46.5 in December 2025 from 44.3 in November but remained in contraction territory. Apart from growth in October, the index stayed below the 50.0 no-change mark throughout 2025. Business activity fell as new work volumes fell for a thirteenth consecutive month, amid subdued demand and clients' reluctance to commit to contracts. New export business remained weak, posting another sharp monthly drop. With activity and new orders under pressure, service providers continued to cut employment mainly through the non-replacement of leavers, marking the fourth straight month of job reductions. Despite softer demand, wage costs kept operating expenses elevated, prompting firms to raise selling prices for the eighth consecutive month. Inflation edged up but remained below earlier 2025 levels.

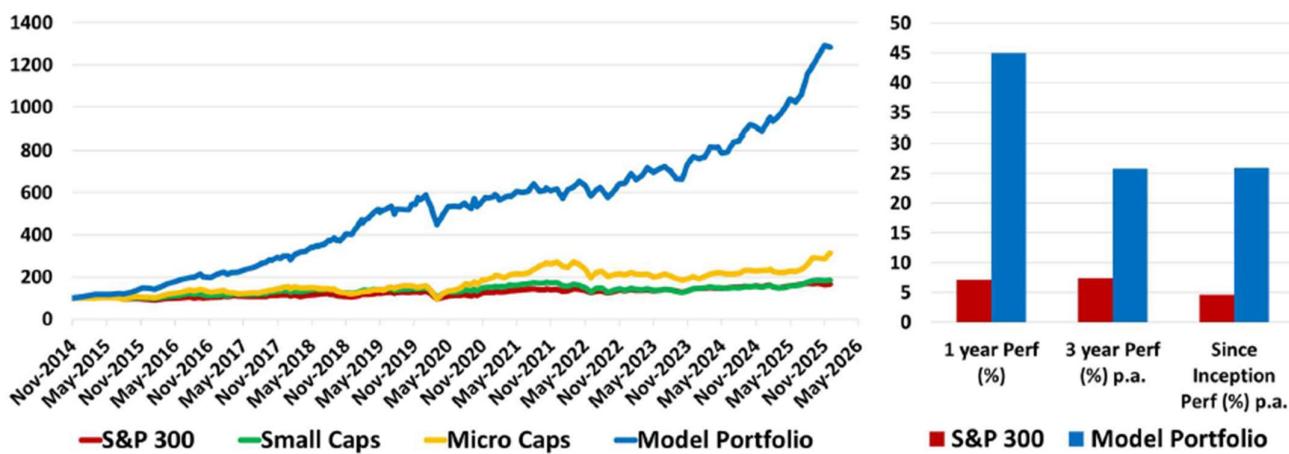

The S&P Global US Services PMI fell to 52.5 in December of 2025 from 54.1 in the previous month, revised lower from the preliminary estimate of 52.9 and below the initial market estimate of 54 to reflect the softest increase in the sector in eight months. New business growth dropped to its lowest in 20 months, with panelists noting higher uncertainty in market demand and lower consumer spending, citing tariffs as a key source of instability. Likewise, trade frictions drove export orders to fall the most since May. The softer demand for capacity and ongoing budget constraints drove employment volumes to inch lower for the first time in nine months. Meanwhile, input price inflation rose to a seven-month high due to tariffs and broad increases in supplier charges, magnifying the increase in labor expenses. Consequently, output charges rose to a four-month high. Still, business confidence remained positive with support from an outlook of interest rate cuts and expanding business plans.

The seasonally adjusted number of total dwellings approved in Australia jumped 15.2% month-on-month to a near four-year high of 18,406 units in November 2025, reversing a downwardly revised 6.1% decline in the previous month, according to preliminary data. The rebound was driven by a strong rebound in permits for private sector dwellings excluding houses (34.1% vs -13.5% in October). At the same time, approvals for private sector houses recovered modestly (1.3% vs. -1.3%). Regionally, building permits increased in New South Wales (28.7%), Victoria (23.8%), Queensland (34.2%), and South Australia (1.0%). In contrast, approvals declined in Western Australia (-14.1%) and Tasmania (-5.8%). On an annual basis, dwelling approvals jumped 20.2%, swinging from a downwardly revised 1.1% fall in October.

Australia's annual inflation slowed to 3.4% in November 2025 from 3.8% in October, below market forecasts of 3.7%, and remained above the RBA's 2–3% target. It marked the lowest inflation since August, with housing prices rising at the slowest pace in three months (5.2% vs 5.9%) amid easing electricity prices (19.7% vs 37.1%) following the expiry of government rebates. Prices also moderated for alcohol and tobacco (4.3% vs 4.4%), clothing (5.1% vs 5.4%), furnishings (1.3% vs 2.1%), health (3.6% vs 4.0%), and recreation (2.0% vs 3.2%). Inflation was steady for transport (2.7%), education (5.4%), and financial services (2.5%), while food inflation (3.3% vs 3.2%) and communication (1.3% vs 0.8%) both accelerated. Trimmed mean CPI eased to 3.2% yoy from October's 8-month high of 3.3%. Monthly, the CPI was flat. Since last November, Australia has transitioned from the quarterly CPI to the full monthly series as its primary gauge of inflation, with the series extending back to April 2024.
