MARKET COMMENTARY

The Aussie market starts the week on a positive note with global fund flow pushing banks higher as steel related worries hit iron ore miners. SUL update clearly shows that even a top retailer is struggling in the weak consumer spending cycle. Employment data is a laggard, but consumer spending is already struggling. The reality of rising prices are hitting consumers despite market spin about inflation mainly under control. The problem for central banks is the global debt from major economies, and they have no plans but to keep growing them. US Fed is currently under attack from the White House to cut rates and the latest move by DOJ against the Fed chair is a clear indication of Fed independence being broken. Markets are starting to worry that bond yields may go up as US flags that they have no plans to curb debt growth. If anything, they are going to grow faster than before. Their answer is to artificial lower rates like Japan. Given that policy failed for three decades in Japan, what can go wrong? Japan is currently looking at another election as the BOJ is stuck in a rate hike cycle and US is bullying them to not sell US treasuries. China geopolitics is hitting Japanese economy. US is looking for someone to blame for the policy failures and if that does not work, there is always someone to attack as distraction. It may be different this time!

CNBC – US Fed under attack > Federal prosecutors are conducting a criminal investigation of Federal Reserve Chairman Jerome Powell focused on the $2.5 billion renovation to the central bank's headquarters in Washington, D.C., and his related testimony to Congress, he said on Sunday evening. Powell said the probe is the result of longstanding frustration by President Donald Trump over the Fed's refusal to cut interest rates as quickly and as much as the president has demanded. "The threat of criminal charges is a consequence of the Federal Reserve setting interest rates based on our best assessment of what will serve the public, rather than following the preferences of the President," Powell said in a video statement tweeted by the Fed's X account. The chairman warned that the outcome of the investigation will determine the future of the central bank's decisions.

CNBC – Japan Elections > Japan's ruling Liberal Democratic Party is planning to dissolve the country's Lower House later this month and opt for a snap election likely in February, according to public broadcaster NHK. This comes as reports over the weekend from Japanese media said that the LDP was looking to capitalize on Prime Minister Sanae Takaichi's high approval ratings to stabilize the ruling coalition. NHK said Japan's Ministry of Internal Affairs and Communications had instructed the election board in each prefecture to prepare for possible general elections. Takaichi's approval ratings are at a historic 75%, according to a Nikkei survey, marking the third straight month of ratings above 70%.

Historically, 75% of retail investors have experienced losses during positive market periods. Investors are now facing market cycles that are unprecedented in their lifetime, making risk management a crucial aspect of investing. Going forward, the trend towards active investing is reemerging as investors seek quality, relative value, profitability, and dividends. To navigate this new paradigm, it's important to have an active investment strategy that is flexible and adaptable to changing market conditions!

The unemployment rate in Canada rose to 6.8% in December 2025 from 6.5% in the previous month and above market expectations of 6.6%, as more people entered the job market in search of work. The uptick partially reversed a cumulative 0.6-percentage-point decline recorded over the prior two months. The number of unemployed rose by 73,000 to 1.6 million, while the labor force increased by 81,000, pushing the participation rate up to 65.4%. Net employment rose by 8,200 to 21.14 million, marking a fourth consecutive month of improvement. Gains were driven by a 50,200 increase in full-time employment, offset by a 42,000 decline in part-time work.

The US unemployment rate edged down to 4.4% in December 2025, from a revised 4.5% in November, which had marked the highest level since October 2021. The reading also came in slightly below market expectations of 4.5%. The number of unemployed fell by 278,000 to 7.50 million, while employment increased by 232,000 to 163.99 million. Meanwhile, the labor force declined by 46,000 to 171.50 million, pushing the labor force participation rate down 0.1 percentage point to 62.4%. The broader U-6 unemployment rate, which includes discouraged workers and those working part-time for economic reasons, eased to 8.4% in December from 8.7% in November, pointing to some improvement in underlying labor market slack.

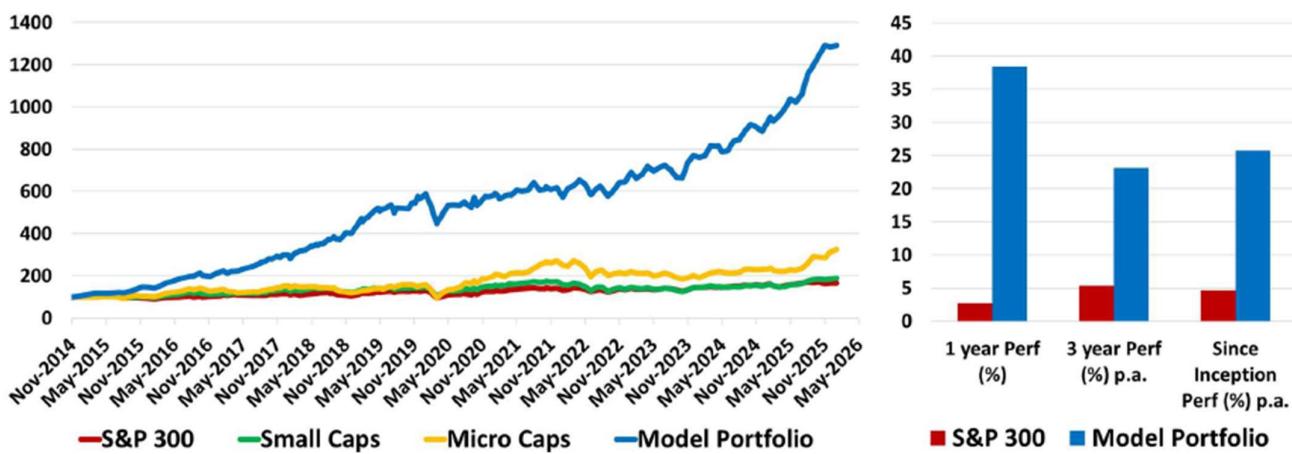

The US economy added 50K payrolls in December 2025, less than a downwardly revised 56K in November and below forecasts of 60K. Employment continued to trend up in food services and drinking places (27K), health care (21K) and social assistance (17K) while retail trade lost 25K jobs. Also, federal government employment was little changed in December and employment showed little or no change in mining, quarrying, and oil and gas extraction; construction; manufacturing; wholesale trade; transportation and warehousing; information; financial activities; professional and business services. The change in total nonfarm payroll employment for October was revised down by 68K to -173K and the change for November was revised down by 8K to +56K. With these revisions, employment in October and November combined is 76K lower than previously reported. Considering full 2025, payroll employment rose by 584K, corresponding to an average monthly gain of 49K, less than the increase of 2.0 million in 2024.

ANZ-Indeed Australian Job Ads fell 0.5% month-on-month in November 2025, easing from a revised 1.5% decline in the prior month and marking the softest contraction since August, extending a six-month downward trend. The moderation reflected seasonal distortions, as hiring in retail, sales, and food services declined sharply following the winding down of temporary recruitment ahead of the peak shopping period. In contrast, demand picked up in logistics, beauty and wellness, and healthcare roles, including physicians and surgeons, indicating continued pockets of labor strength. On an annual basis, job advertisements dropped 7.4%, pointing to a gradual cooling in labor demand amid tighter financial conditions. Still, postings remained 6.2% above pre-pandemic levels.

Household spending in Australia rose 1.0% mom in November 2025, slowing from a marginally revised 1.4% growth in the prior month, which had marked the strongest gain in nearly two years. The slowdown reflected cautious consumer behavior, as households felt the impact of elevated interest rates. Expenditures moderated for food (0.7% vs 1.1% in October), furnishings (2.2% vs 3.0%), hotels & restaurants (1.2% vs 2.2%), and miscellaneous items (0.6% vs 1.6%). Spending on alcoholic drinks fell 1.8%, after rising 1.9% previously. In contrast, expenditures accelerated for health (0.5% vs 0.4%), transport (1.0% vs 0.4%), and recreation (1.7% vs 1.3%). Regionally, spending eased in New South Wales (0.8%), Victoria (1.0%), Queensland (1.0%), South Australia (0.8%), and the Northern Territory (0.5%), but quickened in Western Australia (1.7%). On an annual basis, household spending grew 6.3%, accelerating from a 5.7% gain in October and marking the fastest rise since September 2023.
