MARKET COMMENTARY

The Aussie market had a positive day with large caps positive while mid and small caps were negative. It was clearly due to global flow that it wanted a positive market while local fund managers and retail investors were selling out. The on again off again US attack on Iran was on again in the morning but off again soon after. An attack on Iran is unlikely to be simple and quick like what US wants. It only works when they play cosplay like the organized bombing of the empty nuclear site. Epstein files need distraction and that has the economy falling. That means they need bigger distraction an attack on Iran or Greenland should buy time. EU forces are landing in Greenland while Chinese planes are landing in Iran. Things you have to do to keep Epstein files from the public. Iranian people fighting a strong man regime has been left behind by a grifting one. Anything could happen in the next few weeks, but the economy is sliding. It may be different this time!

CNBC – Iran > Iran reopened its airspace early Thursday after a temporary closure that barred most incoming and outgoing flights for several hours amid concerns the U.S. could carry out military strikes, raising risks for airlines. The restriction, which ended at 3:30 a.m. UTC, or 10:30 p.m. EST Wednesday, was in place for 5 hours. Live data from flight tracker FlightRadar24 showed most aircraft still skirting Iranian airspace as of 4 a.m. UTC, though some domestic carriers had begun resuming flights. The initial order exempted international flights to and from Tehran, provided they received prior approval from Iran's civil aviation authority. The airspace closure comes as tensions escalated after U.S. President Donald Trump threatened intervention following a deadly crackdown on anti-government protests in Iran. Trump has publicly said he would "come to the rescue" of Iranian protestors if the violent crackdown continued. The U.S. has begun relocating some personnel and equipment from American military bases in the Middle East amid Iranian threats to strike those locations if Washington launches an attack. Trump later appeared to soften his tone. Speaking at the White House on Wednesday night, Trump said he has been assured that the killings of protestors in Iran had stopped and that he would "watch it and see" regarding potential U.S. military action.

CNBC – China > Any U.S. attempt to seize Greenland by force would trigger "monumental consequences" for the Western alliance and the global order, Iceland's former President Olafur Ragnar Grimsson said, as President Donald Trump sharpens rhetoric on controlling the Arctic territory. Grimsson warned on CNBC's "Access Middle East" that "the fallout would be on a scale that we have never seen in living memory." Grimsson, the longest-serving president of Iceland from 1996 to 2016, currently serves as the Chairman of the Arctic Circle, the world's largest annual gathering on Arctic issues. Trump has framed Greenland — an autonomous region within the Kingdom of Denmark — as central to U.S. national security, saying China and Russia were building up their influence in the strategically located minerals-rich area around the island.

Historically, 75% of retail investors have experienced losses during positive market periods. Investors are now facing market cycles that are unprecedented in their lifetime, making risk management a crucial aspect of investing. Going forward, the trend towards active investing is reemerging as investors seek quality, relative value, profitability, and dividends. To navigate this new paradigm, it's important to have an active investment strategy that is flexible and adaptable to changing market conditions!

US producer prices rose 0.2% month over month in November 2025, accelerating from a 0.1% increase in October and matching market expectations, according to delayed data from the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Goods prices jumped 0.9%, the largest monthly gain since February 2024, led by a 4.6% surge in energy costs. Excluding food and energy, prices for final demand goods advanced 0.2%, while final demand food prices were unchanged. Service prices were also flat, following a 0.3% rise in October. Meanwhile, core PPI, which excludes food and energy, was unchanged on the month, slowing sharply from a 0.3% rise in October and undershooting the consensus forecast of a 0.2% increase. On an annual basis, headline producer inflation climbed to 3.0% from 2.8%, surpassing expectations of 2.7%. Core producer inflation also edged higher to 3.0% from 2.9%, likewise coming in above forecasts of 2.7%.

US retail sales rose 0.6% mom in November 2025, the largest gain since July, rebounding from a revised 0.1% decline in October and exceeding forecasts of a 0.4% increase. The rise was driven by a rebound in auto sales, following a slowdown caused by the expiration of federal tax incentives on electric vehicles, and by strong holiday shopping. Biggest increases were seen in sales for sporting goods, musical instrument, & book stores (1.9%); miscellaneous store retailers (1.7%); gasoline stations (1.4%); building and garden suppliers (1.3%); motor vehicle dealers (1%); clothing stores (0.9%); food services & drinking places (0.6%); nonstore retailers (0.4%); health & personal care (0.3%); and food & beverage stores (0.1%). On the other hand, sales were flat at general merchandise and electronics stores and fell 0.1% at furniture stores.

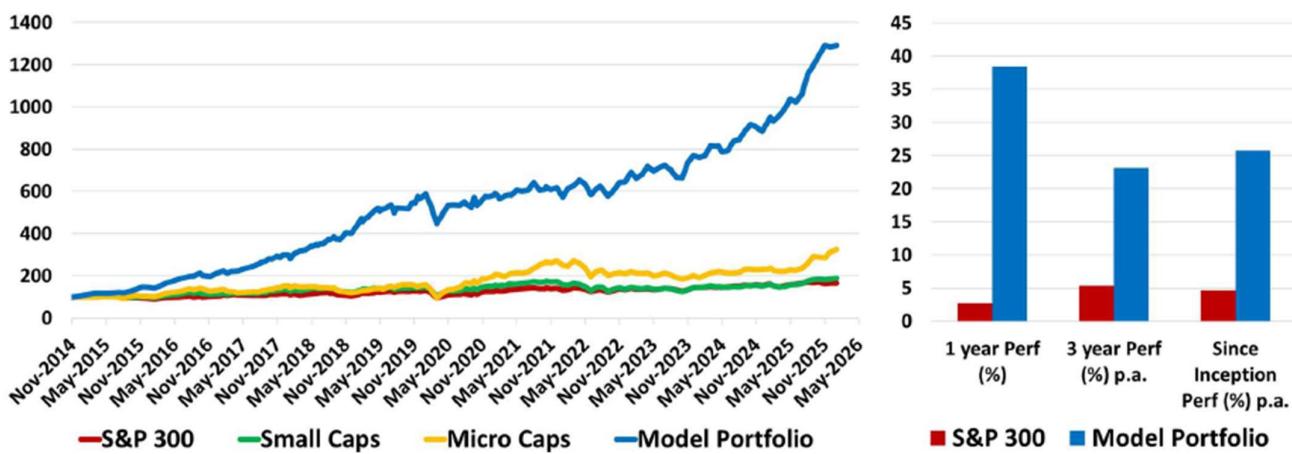

Japan's producer prices rose 2.4% year-on-year in December 2025, easing from a 2.7% increase in the previous month and in line with market expectations. This marked the slowest annual rise since May 2024. Cost moderated for: transport equipment (1.4% vs 1.5% in November), drinks and foods (5.0% vs 5.1%), general-purpose machinery (2.8% vs 3.0%), other manufacturing (2.3% vs 2.4%), production machinery (3.5% vs 4.0%), and plastics (0.4% vs 0.5%). In addition, prices remained weak for chemicals (-3.2% vs -3.5%), iron and steel (-6.7% vs -6.9%), and petroleum and coal products (-8.6% vs -2.5%). In contrast, inflation accelerated for non-ferrous metals (22.1% vs 14.9%), electrical machinery (2.5% vs 2.4%), metal products (0.3% vs 0.1%), information and communications (1.8% vs 1.6%), and business-oriented machinery (2.4% vs 0.9%). On a monthly basis, producer inflation slowed to 0.1% from 0.3% in November, matching forecasts and registering the softest pace in four months.

The Bank of Korea unanimously kept its base rate unchanged at 2.5% for a fifth consecutive meeting in its first policy decision of 2026, in line with market expectations. The move reinforced signals that the current easing cycle has likely reached an end following a cumulative 100bps since October 2024, as policymakers shifted their focus toward financial stability with the won hovering near 16-year lows. In its latest statement, the BoK removed language on considering further cuts, underscoring caution amid geopolitical risks, capital outflow pressures, and uncertainty over U.S. Federal Reserve policy. Concerns over high household debt levels and exchange-rate volatility also weighed on the latest decision. On the macro outlook, policymakers left inflation forecasts unchanged, projecting headline CPI at 2.1% and core at 2.0% this year, both near target. It also maintained its 2026 GDP growth forecast at 1.8%, pointing to a steady but modest recovery.

Australia's consumer inflation expectations stood at 4.6% in January 2026, little changed from 4.7% in the previous month, signaling households still foresee elevated price pressures. The latest reading followed the Reserve Bank of Australia's decision to leave the cash rate unchanged at 3.6% for a third straight meeting in December. During the gathering, policymakers noted inflation has eased sharply from its 2022 peak, though recent data show renewed momentum. Headline CPI slowed to 3.4% yoy in November, the lowest since August, but remained above the RBA's 2-3% target. Trimmed mean CPI also moderated to 3.2% from October's eight-month high of 3.3%. Governor Michele Bullock recently highlighted that September-quarter inflation was slightly stronger than expected, with temporary factors at play but signs of persistence across components. The board judged risks to inflation have tilted modestly upward, while downside risks, particularly from overseas, have eased.
