MARKET COMMENTARY

The Aussie market had a negative day to start the new week. US market is closed tonight for MLK holiday and such that White House has thrown new tariffs that could be pulled back before Tuesday market open. The 25% Iran tariff was aimed at everyone trading with Iran and that includes Russia and China. The 10% Greenland tariff on numerous EU countries was to force Denmark to sell a sovereign region to US. Since they declined, US has pushed it up to 25% tariff. Neither of them is sustainable and it will do as much or more damage to US economy since there are no alternative supplies. Trump has claimed that his economy only started in November but the major problems are only getting worse. Domestic social unrest in the US and calls for Epstein file release are getting worse. The distraction policies are not having any effect. US Fed is now seen as the good guy after Trump tried to destroy their independence. Gold is flying to new all-time high. US policy failures are only surpassed by their grifting. It may be different this time!

CNBC – US, Greenland and EU > Eight NATO members' goods sent to the U.S. will face escalating tariffs "until such time as a Deal is reached for the Complete and Total purchase of Greenland," President Donald Trump announced Saturday. The tariffs targeting Denmark, Norway, Sweden, France, Germany, the United Kingdom, the Netherlands and Finland will start at 10% on Feb. 1, Trump wrote in a Truth Social post. The tariffs will shoot up to 25% on June 1, the president said. The penalties would presumably stack on top of the existing U.S. tariffs already levied on goods from these countries. Tariffs imposed by the U.S. on its allies already average about 15% on goods from the European Union countries in Trump's crosshairs and roughly 10% on imports from the United Kingdom, with rates varying by sector. In sensitive areas such as metals and certain autos, stacked measures have already pushed effective tariffs into the mid-teens to mid-20% range. The imposition of tariffs on one or more members of the EU, which comprises 27 nations, means the new tariffs would apply to all. Trump's demands now threaten the EU-U.S. trade agreement struck in August.

CNBC – China > China's economic growth slowed to its weakest pace in nearly three years in the fourth quarter as domestic demand softened, though full-year growth matched Beijing's target despite growing trade frictions with the U.S. and a prolonged real estate slump. Gross domestic product grew 4.5% in the October-to-December period, data from the National Statistics Bureau showed Monday. That marked a slowdown from 4.8% in the third quarter and was the weakest reading since the first quarter of 2023, when growth also came in at 4.5%. Full-year economic output came in at 5%, meeting the official target of around 5%. Separate December data showed domestic consumption weakened and the investment decline steepened, while manufacturing improved. Industrial output climbed 5.2% in December, topping expectations for a 5% growth and up from 4.8% in the previous month.

Historically, 75% of retail investors have experienced losses during positive market periods. Investors are now facing market cycles that are unprecedented in their lifetime, making risk management a crucial aspect of investing. Going forward, the trend towards active investing is reemerging as investors seek quality, relative value, profitability, and dividends. To navigate this new paradigm, it's important to have an active investment strategy that is flexible and adaptable to changing market conditions!

China's new home prices across 70 cities declined 2.7% year-on-year in December 2025, steeper than a 2.4% drop in the previous month. The latest reading marked the 30th consecutive month of price decreases and the fastest pace since July, underscoring Beijing's persistent struggle to arrest the prolonged downturn in the property sector. Prices fell at a quicker pace in Beijing (-2.4% vs. -2.1% in November), Guangzhou (-4.8% vs -4.3%), Shenzhen (-4.4% vs -3.7%), Chongqing (-2.9% vs. -2.9%), and Tianjin (-3.0% vs -2.2%). Meanwhile, costs in Shanghai eased (4.8% vs 5.1%). On a monthly basis, prices shrank 0.4%, matching November's drop.

China's economy expanded 4.5% yoy in Q4 2025, slowing from 4.8% in Q3 and marking the weakest rise in three years. The latest result came as December retail sales grew at their slowest rate in three years, weighed down by a prolonged property slump and deflationary pressures despite ongoing consumer subsidies. Meantime, the jobless rate stood at 5.1% for the third straight month while industrial output growth accelerated. Still, full-year growth reached 5%, in line with Beijing's target and unchanged from 2024, helped by a record-high trade surplus as strong exports to non-U.S. markets helped offset tariff pressure and weaker fixed investment.

China's retail sales rose 0.9% year-on-year in December 2025, slowing from a 1.3% increase and missing market expectations of a 1.2% gain. It marked the weakest growth since December 2022, as a soft jobs market and falling home prices continue to weigh on consumer spending. Sales growth moderated for grains, oil, and food products (3.9% vs 6.1% in November), clothing, footwear, and textiles (0.6% vs 3.5%), Chinese and Western medicines (1.2% vs 4.9%), and cultural and office supplies (9.2% vs 11.7%). In addition, petroleum and related products fell 11%, compared with an 8% decrease in the previous month. On the other hand, communication equipment sales picked up slightly (20.9% vs 20.6%), while declines in automobiles (-5% vs -8.3%), home appliances and audio-visual equipment (-18.7% vs -19.4%), and tobacco and alcohol (-2.9% vs -3.4%) eased. On a monthly basis, retail sales fell 0.12%, easing from a 0.41% drop in the previous month.

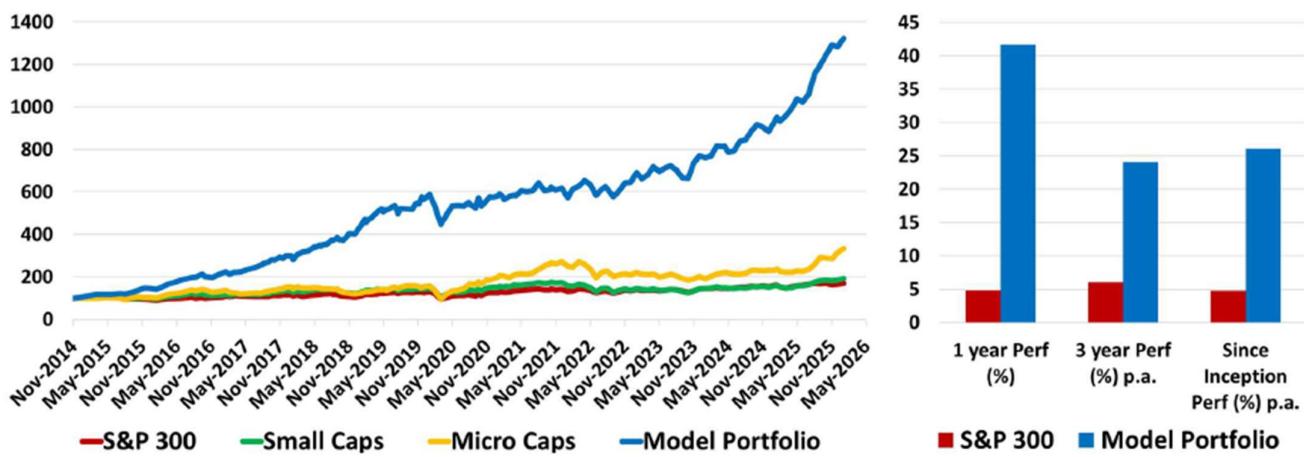

China's fixed-asset investment fell by 3.8% in 2025, worse than market forecasts of a 3% drop. This marked the first annual decline since 1989, dragged mainly by a sharp fall in property investment (-17.2%). Infrastructure investment also dropped by 2.2%, while manufacturing investment saw a modest increase of 0.6%. By industry, investment in the primary industry rose by 2.3% and the secondary industry went up by 2.5%, whereas investment in the tertiary industry contracted by 7.4%. Excluding the property sector, fixed-asset investment was down by 0.5% in 2025. On a monthly basis, fixed-asset investment dropped by 1.1% in December, following a 0.4% fall in November.

China's surveyed urban unemployment rate stood at 5.1% in December 2025, unchanged from the previous two months and slightly below market expectations of 5.2%. Among the locally registered labor force, the unemployment rate was unchanged at 5.3%, while the rate for the migrant labor force also remained steady at 4.7% since October. Within the migrant workforce, those holding agricultural household registration recorded an unemployment rate of 4.4%. Across 31 major cities, the surveyed urban unemployment rate likewise held steady at 5.1%. Meanwhile, enterprise employees nationwide worked an average of 48.6 hours per week. Over the whole year, the national surveyed urban unemployment rate averaged 5.2%.

Australia's Monthly Inflation Gauge, compiled by the Melbourne Institute, surged 1.0% mom in December 2025, marking the fastest pace since December 2023 and a sharp pickup from 0.3% in the prior two months. The latest result came as the Reserve Bank held the cash rate steady at 3.6% for a third consecutive meeting in the month. Policymakers noted inflation has cooled markedly from its 2022 peak but flagged renewed momentum in recent data. Headline CPI eased to 3.4% yoy in November, the lowest since August, yet still above the central bank's 2-3% target. Trimmed mean CPI also edged down to 3.2% from October's eight-month high of 3.3%. The board assessed that inflation risks have modestly tilted upward, while downside pressures, particularly from global conditions, have eased.
