MARKET COMMENTARY

The Aussie market had the third consecutive negative day to start the week. US market came back after a long weekend and ran into a bashing after Trump decided to keep the tariff story going instead of the usual TACO. There are only three main options: (1) EU panders to US with fake claims > which looks unlikely after recent statements (2) TACO > most likely...US pretends it won and releases some spin with alternative facts or (3) US bombs something > rising risk and Iran cosplay likely. The problem with Trump bully strategy is that it's gone on for too long. After a year of the reality show, governments and markets are starting to not buy into the boy who cried wolf. Canadian PM gave a well-timed speech calling the world to move on from the concept of US driven global balance. It was always a concept but that needed everyone to play their part to keep it going. Now that the bubble has burst, no one is going to pretend anymore. Gold has run US$200 in two days. Supply worries are pushing energy and food. Trump economy is in trouble to the point that he flagged to send $2000 tariff dividend when that money has been already spent. may be different this time!

CNBC – US and Greenland > Markets on Tuesday flashed the classic signs of a “sell America” trade, as investors recoiled from escalating risks tied to Washington’s foreign policy. Major U.S. indexes tumbled in their worst day since October, pushing the S&P 500 and Nasdaq Composite into negative territory for 2026. Volatility jumped, with the VIX index, Wall Street’s “fear gauge,” spiking to a high of 20.99. Meanwhile, bond yields jumped, the U.S. Dollar Index fell and gold prices hit new records. Those moves reflected concerns raised by Ray Dalio, founder of Bridgewater Associates, who warned that mounting tensions could spill into capital markets. Dalio said Tuesday that U.S. President Donald Trump’s aggressive moves toward annexing Greenland could prompt foreign governments and investors to reconsider their appetite for U.S. assets. “On the other side of trade deficits and trade wars, there are capital and capital wars,” Dalio told CNBC’s “Squawk Box” at the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland. One early signal emerged from Denmark. Pension fund AkademikerPension said it will sell roughly $100 million in U.S. Treasurys. The decision was driven by concerns over “poor [U.S.] government finances” and “not directly related to the ongoing rift between the [U.S.] and Europe,” said Anders Schelde, the fund’s investing chief, though he added that recent tensions between the U.S. and Europe “didn’t make it more difficult to take the decision.” U.S. officials, for their part, struck a defiant tone. Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent told CNBC at Davos that “the U.S. is back, and this is what U.S. leadership looks like.” Bessent made those comments before markets closed Tuesday. International reaction to Trump’s moves has been far less receptive. Greenlanders are “bewildered” by the U.S. president, the arctic island’s business minister told CNBC on Tuesday, while French President Emmanuel Macron hit out at “bullies” and “brutality” — without giving specifics — as he called for U.S. tariffs on Europe to be abolished. But, amid the furor in recent days, Trump doesn’t appear to be backing down.

Historically, 75% of retail investors have experienced losses during positive market periods. Investors are now facing market cycles that are unprecedented in their lifetime, making risk management a crucial aspect of investing. Going forward, the trend towards active investing is reemerging as investors seek quality, relative value, profitability, and dividends. To navigate this new paradigm, it's important to have an active investment strategy that is flexible and adaptable to changing market conditions!

Producer prices in Germany fell 2.5% yoy in December 2025, following a 2.3% decline in November and compared with market expectations of a 2.4% fall. This marked the tenth consecutive month of annual producer price declines and the steepest drop since April 2024, primarily driven by lower energy costs, which fell 9.7%. Key contributors within the energy sector included natural gas (-14.6%), electricity (-11.1%), mineral oil products (-6.6%), and district heating (-0.2%). Excluding energy, producer prices advanced 0.9%, after a 0.8% gain in November. By contrast, price increases were recorded for non-durable consumer goods (0.6%), durable consumer goods (1.8%), and capital goods (2.0%). Intermediate goods also climbed 0.3%, due to higher metal prices. Monthly, the producer price index declined 0.2% in December, in line with expectations, after being flat in November, marking the first monthly decrease in three months. For the full year 2025, producer price deflation averaged 1.2%.

The UK unemployment rate stood at 5.1% in the three months to November 2025, unchanged from the previous period and slightly above market expectations of 5.0%. The rate remained at its highest level since the three months to March 2021, as total unemployment rose by 103,000 from the previous quarter to 1.840 million, driven by increases among those unemployed for up to six months, 6–12 months, and over twelve months. Meanwhile, total employment increased by 82,000 to 34.303 million, supported mainly by higher employee numbers, while full-time self-employment declined and part-time self-employment grew. The number of people with second jobs rose slightly to 1.294 million, accounting for 3.8% of those employed. The employment rate remained unchanged at 75.1%, while the economic inactivity rate fell by 0.2 percentage points to 20.8%.

Total average weekly earnings in the UK, including bonuses, increased 4.7% year-on-year to GBP 741 in the three months to November 2025, following a marginally revised 4.8% in the previous period but surpassing market expectations of 4.6%. It marked the softest rise since the three months to August 2024, as private sector wage growth eased to 3.9% from 4.1%, marking the weakest pace since early 2021. In contrast, public sector pay gains edged higher to 7.8%, the highest since July–September 2023, following a 7.7% rise. Adjusted for inflation, total earnings increased 0.8% in the three months to November, the same pace as in the prior period.

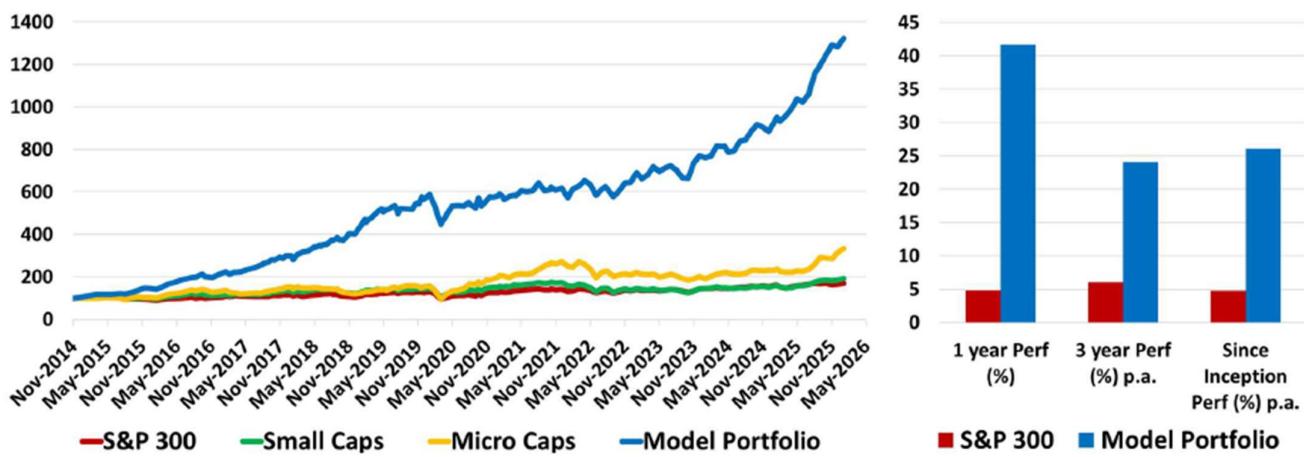

The eurozone's current account surplus narrowed to €12.6 billion in November 2025, down sharply from €27.1 billion a year earlier, reflecting weaker trade and income balances. The goods surplus fell to €27.1 billion from €33.0 billion, as exports declined by 2.8% while imports edged down by a more modest 0.4%. The services surplus also contracted, easing to €4.4 billion from €6.0 billion. Meanwhile, the primary income account swung into a €3.4 billion deficit, reversing a €4.9 billion surplus recorded in the same period last year. Partially offsetting these pressures, the secondary income deficit narrowed to €15.5 billion from €16.8 billion. From January to November 2025, the eurozone's current account surplus narrowed to €226.2 billion, down significantly from €366.4 billion over the same period in 2024.

Argentina's trade surplus rose to USD 1,892 million in December 2025, up from USD 1,682 million a year earlier. Imports rose 3.5% year-on-year to USD 5,556 million, driven by a 3.0% increase in quantities and a 0.4% rise in prices. Meanwhile, exports rose 5.7% to USD 7,448 million, led by a 6.2% increase in quantities despite a 0.5% decline in prices. For the year-to-date through December 2025, the trade surplus stood at USD 11,286 million, down from USD 18,928 million in the same period of 2024.

Leading Economic Index Australia increased 0.10 percent in December of 2025 over the same month in the previous year. Leading Economic Index in Australia averaged 0 percent from 1960 until 2025, reaching an all time high of 0.69 percent in November of 2020 and a record low of -1.92 percent in April of 2020.
