MARKET COMMENTARY

The Aussie market started the week positive as US market is closed tonight. Global markets were negative last week with US market struggling despite usual tech pump for NonFarm Payrolls and Inflation updates. The global mega passive funds are struggling and were back defending Aussie market due to US holidays. Given the fragility of US policy settings, anything could happen in the long weekend. US policy failures are piling up and everyone in the White House has moved to calling the equity market as the proxy for policy success. It is ironical because the AI/Tech catalyst that drove the past few years of outperformance is under pressure as AI turns on multiple sectors like SaaS, Insurance etc. The SaaS models bounced in the local market today as US is closed. It may retrace tomorrow when US reopens. Classic sign of stretched market is the elevate volatility and attack on hedges like precious metals. The local reporting season is raising volatility as well. There isn't much buffer left in share prices when expectations are missed. Cyclical sectors are becoming just as volatile as growth stocks. Volatility is not going away but economic growth is fading. Fake economic data in the US is only going to make US Fed's job harder. No one is buying the US inflation or employment data. But it does make it easier for the Fed to remain on hold. It may be different this time!

CNBC – Panama > Japan's economy grew 0.1% in the fourth quarter of 2025 compared with the previous three months, narrowly avoiding a technical recession. While it was a reversal of the 0.7% contraction in the third quarter, the gross domestic product missed expectations of a 0.4% expansion by economists polled by Reuters. A technical recession is commonly defined as two consecutive quarters of contraction. On an annualized basis, output rose 0.2%, compared with forecasts of 1.6%, following a 2.3% decline in the previous quarter. Compared with a year earlier, fourth-quarter GDP expanded 0.1%, slowing from 0.6% in the third quarter. Private consumption drove the modest expansion, offsetting weakness in exports and public spending, according to data from Japan's Cabinet Office.

CNBC – US Techs > President Donald Trump's trade and manufacturing adviser, Peter Navarro, said on Sunday that the White House may force data center builders to absorb their costs as voters continue to sour on the economy and utility prices soar. "All of these data center builders, Meta on down, need to pay for all, all of the costs," Navarro said on Fox News' "Sunday Morning Futures." "They need to pay, not only pay for the electricity that they're using on the grid, but they have to pay for the resiliency that they're affecting as well. They need to pay for the water. So there's activity, action here going forward, where we force them to internalize the cost." Navarro did not detail what the White House's plan to force data center builders to internalize costs would look like. CNBC has reached out to the White House for clarification. When asked about Navarro's remarks, a Meta spokesperson said the company already pays for all of its energy usage.

Historically, 75% of retail investors have experienced losses during positive market periods. Investors are now facing market cycles that are unprecedented in their lifetime, making risk management a crucial aspect of investing. Going forward, the trend towards active investing is reemerging as investors seek quality, relative value, profitability, and dividends. To navigate this new paradigm, it's important to have an active investment strategy that is flexible and adaptable to changing market conditions!

The Australian sharemarket closed modestly higher on Monday, supported by a rebound in technology stocks following last week's AI-led sell-off, which offset weakness in materials and profit-taking across the major banks.

The S&P/ASX 200 Index added 19.5 points, or 0.2%, to 8,967.1, having traded up as much as 35 points intraday. Eight of the 11 sectors finished in positive territory. With US markets closed for a public holiday and China shut for the Lunar New Year, local earnings results and selective bargain hunting drove trading activity.

Technology stocks led gains, recovering part of last week's sharp declines triggered by concerns around AI disruption to software margins. WiseTech surged 12.9% to $48.11, Xero rose 7.6% to $79.06, and TechnologyOne advanced 5.6% to $21.30.

InvestorHub co-CEO Ben Williamson said the market had reassessed last week's sell-off, noting confidence in the sector's entrenched customer bases, partnerships and operating moats.

Bargain buying also emerged in Austal, which rallied 19.5% to $5.82 after a 23% fall on Friday following an earnings downgrade linked to an overstated US Navy contract.

Materials weighed on the index as iron ore remained below US$100/t amid elevated Chinese stockpiles and higher output from Vale. Fortescue fell 4.7% to $20.21 and BHP declined 1.5% to $50.36.

Rio Tinto dropped 4.1% to $162.75 after suspending operations at its Simandou project in Guinea following a fatality.

The banking sector saw profit-taking after its strongest weekly gain since 2022. ANZ fell 3.1% to $39.63 and National Australia Bank slipped 1.0% to $45.54. Westpac edged up 0.2% to $40.61 and Commonwealth Bank gained 1.1% to $178.28.

Bendigo Bank fell 2.2% to $11.20 following its result, with Citi flagging ongoing balance sheet growth challenges.

Earnings were a key driver of stock-specific moves. a2 Milk rose 6.8% to $9.10 after posting a stronger-than-expected first half and upgrading full-year guidance on solid China demand. JB Hi-Fi jumped 7.5% to $82.40 after beating forecasts with a 7.1% lift in interim profit to $305.8m.

Aurizon gained 7.0% to $3.84 after lifting its interim dividend to 12.5c and abandoning plans to sell a stake in its Queensland network.

On the downside, Treasury Wine Estates fell 5.2% to $4.97 after reporting a $649m first-half loss and cancelling its interim dividend.

Qube rose 3.3% to $5.01 after agreeing to an $11.7bn takeover by Macquarie Asset Management, which will result in the company delisting from the ASX.

Ansell added 3.8% to $32.48 after first-half profit beat expectations, with cost controls offsetting the impact of US tariffs.

Overall, the session reflected selective risk-taking in beaten-down growth stocks, offset by ongoing pressure on bulk commodities and rotation out of banks following recent strength.
